SUBJECT: Contract GN-764-1

Dear Frank:

Enclosed are two signed copies of subject contract. We did not receive "Appendix I" referred to in signature page of contract.

I have no "Appendix I" - JK

Referencing our phone conversation of 18 September concerning the scope of specifications to be provided under Item 1 of subject contract, our interpretation of "performance specifications and performance and maintenance manuals therefor" is that information which is related to the performance of the system (what it will do under what conditions) and that information which provides details for use, maintaining, and servicing of the system as used in the applicable program.

There may be a conflict in this specification requirement if [Redacted] letter of 9 August (paragraph 4), which suggests specifications for follow-on procurement, prevails.

Should procurement-type specifications be required, we feel the cost of accomplishing Item 1 should be re-negotiated.

At this time, we feel that we can provide the necessary specifications and manuals at the present contract price.

We do not, however, know what our oxygen equipment subcontractor will indicate based on our submission of specification requirements of the type requested by [Redacted]. We enclosed sample specifications for the oxygen equipment which [Redacted] sent us with his 9 August letter with our purchase order to them, but have not yet received their comments.

Please call if you should have further question on this matter; in the meantime we are proceeding on this program as originally understood.

Cordially,
